Shalom	352 is a Shemitah year on a lie not that year (372 + 70 = 392). 352 is the 4th year but the stone says it is the 3rd year. 372 is the 23 year. The 11th month Sherat or the 11th month on this path. It is the previous year which is the 2nd year and There is one date I can use

But the Jewish Year 386 + 70 = 456 does in fact begin on Rosh Hosy. Which then matches our Chronology.
Error	15	15	Thursday	4	1	7	400	470	Nesch's # 15 May the spirit rest who died on the 7th day(the sixth of Tishri, on the seventh year year four hundred to the destruction of the temple . peace 400 + 70 = 470 CE	This is 6 days after the Sabbathat cycle had ended in 374. This would imply there was a leap year that year as they state the First year. But the Jewish calendar Shemitah is Tishri and is Aviv. Adar would in fact be the end of the Shemitah year. Adar 9 is Aviv 369 and ended with Aviv 370.
33	22		Wednesday	3	12	7	389	459	May rest the soul of Rabbi Simon Binaki, who died the fourth day (Wednesday) on the 3rd day of the month Adar in the seventh year three hundred and eighty and five years to the destruction of the temple May he rest a sage in peace. It is actually the end of this 6th year with the Shemitah about to begin. So this too is a match

Peace Peace Peace 362 + 70 = 432	362 is a Shemitah year on a lie not that year (432 + 70 = 502). 362 is the 4th year but the stone says it is the 3rd year. Ipish is a female name. Mansa could have been a diminutive of Ezra. Ezra was a common name during the 1st Sabbatical cycle. Ezra was also a common name during the 1st Sabbatical cycle. Ezra was also a common name during the 1st Sabbatical cycle. To know if, in fact, Ezra is how they used it we need to know if it was a common name during a various years during the 1st Sabbatical cycle. (Just like
